IPMA ICB 4 – GENERAL INFORMATION

The purpose of the internationally recognized project management certification in accordance with the IPMA® guidelines is to provide the corresponding documentary proof of these competencies to employees in the private and public sectors, as well as self-employed entrepreneurs who have acquired relevant theoretical and practical skills in the fields of project, program and portfolio management. The certification is designed to simplify the recruitment of successful and trustworthy personnel for the private and public sector, in order to manage projects, programs and portfolios and to document the project management skills of their employees vis-à-vis their customers. The certification can be completed at the IPMA levels A, B, C or D.

The Eye of Competence (Individual Competence Baseline - ICB4) constitutes a complete inventory of skills for the management of projects, programs and portfolios.

The 3 areas of competence are:

- Perspective
- People
- Practice

BENEFITS OF THE CERTIFICATION

For the certified person

- Proof of competences based on the IPMA guidelines
- Proof of project management know-how and experience in the form of a personal certificate of performance
- Internationally recognized project management certificate

For companies and other organizations

- Proof of project management competence vis-à-vis customers
- Securing a competitive advantage
- Establishing a qualification standard and a project management career path within the company

For clients

- Greater security when placing orders
- Higher specialized competence of the contractors

LEVELS OF CERTIFICATION

IPMA offers four levels of certification – Level A, B, C, and D. For each level, the candidates need to fulfill a series of requirements which are listed below. There is no obligation to pass through all the certification levels. A candidate who fulfills the criteria for Level B – for example – can start preparing for Level B exam without having past the lower Level's exams.

Level B and A differentiate between Project, Program and Portfolio. Depending on the emphasis which a candidate takes in his/her career at this level, he/she has to choose between one of these directions. Our coaches will further elaborate the options.

IPMA Level C - Certified Project Manager

You are able to manage projects of limited complexity.

Requirements

Over the past 6 years, at least 3 years' experience as a project manager in moderate complex projects or in a responsible project management role as a project manager assistant in complex projects. Only the roles of deputy project manager and sub-project manager are accepted.

Certification process

- 1 Application to receive the certificate, including self-assessment
- 2 Executive Summary Report to demonstrate the complexity of the project management
- 3 Written examination
- 4 Write a report to demonstrate your competence
- 5 Interview

Certification fees (payable to VZPM) can be found on their website.

Time investment

You should count an average of 100 – 120 hours to prepare for the IPMA C Certification.

CERTIFICATION PREPARATION BY STS

STS can offer an individual preparation course to the IPMA certification according to the Swiss model and requirements for levels D through A. Our courses are based on the reference book IPMA Individual Competence Baseline – Version 4 (ICB4). This reference book covers the three domains of competences, illustrated by numerous explanations.

The preparation includes:

- Self-study – to get acquainted with the required knowledge and skills for each certification level; and
- Coaching – by experienced trainers, in workshops or individually STS aligns the preparation process with the public certification cycle of the Swiss certification body vzpm (www.vzpm.ch).

Preparation is slightly different depending on the IPMA level. The preparation package for the IPMA certification includes:

- Sessions (virtual or face-to-face) with an experienced coach/trainer to prepare for the different stages of the certification.
- Individual coaching and review of certification documents by an experienced coach/trainer.
- Digital learning tools as well as books to acquire knowledge.

The coach ensures that the steps of the certification process are well prepared and that the candidates fulfill the conditions to succeed.

The preparation is offered in German, French, and English. (Depending on the level, the certification documents may not be available in English. This should be verified with the certifying body: vzpm.ch).

E-LEARNING

The e-Learning course “Project Management IPMA Competences – ICB 4” is aligned with the IPMA Competences Baseline 4 and covers the three competence areas of the ICB. It is designed to provide a solid introduction to project management tools, techniques, and skills.

During preparation time, you are accompanied by an experienced tutor who answers your questions and supports you in the learning process.

The content can be accessed in free order according to your personal learning approach. The course is available in English, German and French.

The lessons include a variety of exercises that help reviewing the content and preparing for the exam.

TUTORING

During the individual learning phase, a tutor will accompany the certification candidates on their learning process and answer their questions. The tutoring is limited to comprehension questions and explanation of project management as outlined in the e-Learning courses. The tutoring service helps to solve questions and understand project management in a comprehensive way. The tutor will not cover any procedural questions or review any parts of the certification process. The tutoring services are limited to 4 months.
